

Mindlessness and policing vulnerability – a perspective on current approaches

Robert Ewin

University of Cumbria

Date: March 3rd, 2021

Time: 14:00-15:00

Teams Link: Join Seminar (We'd appreciate if you could optionally register to join our mailing list)

Abstract:

The processes relating to the management and treatment of vulnerable people by policing professions receives much media and research attention. This short talk will discuss a PhD research project related to the issue and also describe how this field might be developed in the future. This is both relevant to the professional and academic fields alike.

Biography:

I have worked as a detective sergeant for a number of years and recently completed a PhD on the issue of policing responses to vulnerable people. I have some publications relating to this area and also the professional experiences of investigators. My current deployment as a Police Officer is within the training department where I look after new police recruits and specialist crime training.

Please contact Jennifer for any Teams connectivity issues: *j.mcculloch@lancaster.ac.uk*